The $42,000 Inequity Fund

We aren't getting very far with the distribution of the above Fund to employees in certain skilled occupations. The Company and the Union are pretty well agreed on the language of the Contract clause. But the Union apparently will not sign an Agreement concerning it until another issue is settled. It is the Company's opinion that the other issue is not connected with the Fund issue in any way.

This Fund was negotiated in place of a specific extra increase for employees in certain skilled occupations. Any adjustments made from the Fund will be effective retroactive to October 23, 1950. Once an Agreement is signed concerning the Fund, the matter of how it will be distributed will be settled by an arbitrator if the Company and Union cannot agree between them.

It is unfortunate that this distribution is being held up because of another issue. This other issue concerns a listing of skilled occupations. We can see no connection between the two issues. The Company has assumed an obligation and wants to discharge it. We cannot do so without a signed Contract clause. Those who will participate in the Fund would probably appreciate receiving some of it before Christmas.

Don't Be Fooled By Enemy Lies

Guest Writer—Grover C. Baldwin

(Ed's Note:—Brigadier General Baldwin is a veteran of both World Wars. He was called to active duty on January 6, 1941, and commanded the 7th Group of the Fifth Air Force in the New Guinea, Leyte, Luzon and Okinawa campaigns, being cited for bravery in action at Luzon in March, 1945. On September 2, 1945, he received the formal surrender of Major General Yoshiro Tanaka and the Japanese Army Air Force at Tachikawa in Tokyo prefecture.)

During the past few weeks we have been subjected to an old enemy attack in a new form. The story was told, repeated and believed that American troops going into the ice and cold of northern Korea were clothed in summer uniforms. A half-truth! Some units were ahead of their supply lines but most troops were properly outfitted and the clothes for the others were on the way to the front.

But enemy agents in the United States and elsewhere spread the story that all Americans were cold and unclothed.

This sort of story will be told over and over. If you believe these lies you will be a victim of enemy action.

Beware of lies and half-truths.

There are honest, capable and patriotic men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Air Force. They deserve your confidence and your support. Don't believe enemy lies.

On this ninth anniversary of Pearl Harbor, be as brave and resolute as you were in 1941. Remember that, in Peace and War, God is on the side of justice. In the words of Lord Tennyson, "He is thrice around who has his quarrel just".

Let us do right as God gives us to see the right. God helping us, we can do no other.

Warning Signs For Protection

Various types of warning signs are used throughout the Plant to protect employees from becoming victims of possible accidents which might be caused on otherwise safe jobs. Al Busby and Walter Pond, of Electrical, hold a sign used to "tag out" controls on equipment on which work is being done.

If you see a "tag-out" sign, respect it. It is there to warn you that work is being done and that equipment should not be operated.

On electrical equipment, electricians also remove fuses to give complete protection during work on jobs which would otherwise be hazardous.

Tag-out signs are used, also, on many controls as a permanent warning to all persons.

Various types of these signs are available at the Safety Department. Be sure you have the signs you need for your job and use them.

Don't disregard or remove such signs! Only the person placing the sign should remove it.

Life Out East

By Harry Shewbridge

On Saturday morning, November 25, I watched ANN DRAGO, looking radiant in lace and satin, walk down the aisle of the Blessed Sacrament Church where she became Mrs. Emilio Agresti. Thirteen years ago, almost to the day, I met ANN in the old Hand Screw Dept. Therefore, I know whereof I speak when I say that she is the kind of person the rest of us would like to be. ANN is going to reside in New York, and so she has left us. To a very deserving person, good luck and much happiness to you both in the years to come.

A couple of faces we've seen before have appeared on the scene again in Chucking. BETTY LANGE and LAURA DENTON are back again keeping time. I'm especially glad to see BETTY back again because she's one of the few people who appreciate my taste in neckties.

One face I've missed lately is that of HELEN LOY's of ASMD Packing. They tell me she has gone back to the hospital. Some of us old-timers like to have you around, HELEN, so we do hope you'll be back again soon.

It's been such a short time since the last issue that there isn't much to report on this week, so I'll save the space for another time.

Card Playing

Cribbage

The first round of the Cribbage Tournament was completed on November 28, with the National League leading by 1,126 points. Totals scored by both leagues at the end of the first round are: Nationals—73,810, Americans—72,684.

Individual high score for that evening was taken by BILL STROKALITIS and CHARLIE PULFORD who totaled 1,409 points.

BILL STROKALITIS still holds the honor of being high man of the tournament with a score of 8,923.

This year, the players will not remain in the same league throughout the tournament. At the end of each round, changes will be made in the lineups for added interest in the game.

Pinochle

As of November 16, ART DENKER's men are still leading the tournament with a score of 210,725 points. ERV HONY-OTSKI's boys are second with 205,920.

Individual high score for the evening was taken by ERV HONYOTSKI who totaled 4,190. JOHN MANFREDI was second, 4,165.

Scovill Story In Medals--No. 2

The second article in our series on the Scovill story in medals covers tokens made during the 19th century. The above samples are shown because of their known use as tokens and the authenticity of their Scovill origin.

The token has been manufactured primarily as a substitute for cash. We see it as an article of convenience, as used for bus fares. When widely circulated throughout the country, it indicates a serious shortage in the supply of official coins, as in the 1830's when the government suspended specie payments; in the 1860's during the Civil War; and during the 1930's, especially in "bank week", when all banks were closed and factory payrolls were made up of emergency paper.

Official substitutes issued by the government have had the form of small paper notes known as postal currency, or promissory notes, popularly called "shin plasters".

A second form was a small advertising medal or "store card", which became a very convenient substitute for pennies and nickels.

As these became accepted, a third form was definitely made for circulating purposes, usually as a form of protest against paper currency, thus as political propaganda. The following article will show Scovill's participation in the production of tokens of this last class.

Tokens Made In The 19th Century

Scovill's earliest record of medals was in 1828 and, in following years, made them for people in Philadelphia, New Orleans and New York. These subsequently came into use as tokens in 1837 due to currency shortage.

In May, the government suspended specie payments and soon afterward, issued fractional paper currency. In November, token money was in circulation. One such showing a Phoenix rising from flames (No. 1 in photo) was made by Scovill.

No. 2—another token made the same year. The Liberty Head appears on the reverse side.

The Centre Market of New York is shown in token No. 3 which was made in September, 1837. Its purpose is suggested by "Accommodation" underneath the market picture. No. 4—another token of that year, with the Liberty Head on the reverse.

In the Fall of 1837, other tokens were issued with the inscription, "Millions For Defense—Not One Cent For Tribute". These (not shown) had on the reverse side in one case, the Ship Constitution (as in Medal No. 5) and, in another case, the Liberty Head.

In 1841, we made No. 5—the famous Webster and Van Buren tokens referred to, incidentally, in the customer's order as "cents". It shows the good ship Constitution as representing Daniel Webster's plan for Credit Currency. Another, No. 6, shows the wrecked ship, Experiment, representing the Van Buren Metallic currency. This is dated 1837 as the die was first used then, but the Webster token reads 1841, which is the actual date both were made.

Another token issued in 1841 is shown in No. 7—"Millions For Defense—Not One Cent For Tribute". This form was issued with Scovill's Phoenix on the reverse. Another interesting sample is found in No. 8 which we made for a New York boot and shoe merchant in 1843, with the same legend on the reverse. The making of these tokens continued through the 1840's. A letter of 1850 refers to preparations made by the government to resume specie payments.

"Not One Cent" became so popular that it was used on patriotic tokens as late as 1860, chiefly as campaign propaganda, with the expression, "Millions For Freedom — Not One Cent For Slavery".

For a while, "Not One Cent" was used by itself within a wreath, with the word, "Not" in less conspicuous letters. No. 9 illustrates this in a token issued in 1863, when "shin plasters" and postal currency were employed by training. He attended the World Power Conferences in London in 1924, and in Berlin in 1930.

Recognized as an outstanding authority on steam power, "Chief" brought the Main Plant and Waterville Division power plants up from small units to modern plants capable of filling full industrial power needs.

In many ways, his steam power knowledge was a tremendous aid to the budding Scovill condenser tube business in the late 20's. Applying his knowledge to the manufacturing problems, he tested, applied and devised new tube procedures. He instructed Scovill salesmen and concerns in all sections of the world in the use of tubing, which greatly aided Scovill in building the condenser tube business.

Just prior to his retirement, "Chief" saw his last major project go into operation—a new boiler for oil or coal with a capacity of 250,000 pounds of steam an hour.

William Wyrick

WILLIAM WYRICK, formerly of Sanitation, died on November 24, 1950.

Mr. Wyrick first came to Scovill in February, 1912, and worked intermittently until 1933 when his continuous service record started. Always in Sanitation, he was a janitor when illness forced him to leave the Company in June, 1945.

Henry Beaulac

HENRY BEAULAC, Japan, died on November 27, 1950.

Mr. Beaulac had completed thirty-four years of continuous Company service this past June. He had spent all of his years in the Manufacturing Division and was a Japaner's helper at the time of his death.

Rod & Gun Club

Following the November 21 meeting of the Rod and Gun Club, members competed in a Fitzluck rifle shoot. John Kucheravy, who scored 42, won a twelve-pound turkey.

After the turkey shoot, refreshments and a game of setback were enjoyed. Mr. Kucheravy also won first prize in the card game.

the government. On the reverse side is an Indian head like our own recent penny pieces.

As early as 1848, customers were writing to Scovill that merchants and banks were beginning to refuse to accept tokens in circulation. As many as two or three such coins were now being demanded as equivalent for a penny purchase.

An interesting summary of Scovill's production in 1837 for various customers shows even a partial total, amounting to over a half million tokens. One customer took 10,000 per week for quite a period. It is not surprising that the market should have become flooded with them ten years later.

Although many samples of tokens are not available as the dies appear to have been lost in the Button Shop fire of 1881, others may be found later.

IRA Rifle

The SERA men were victors over American Brass on November 28 with a final score of 941-915. Harold Slocum was high with 196 points.

On November 21, Scovill lost to Waterbury Companies by 5 points. The final score was 929-924.

The last match of the first round will be held on December 5, when Scovill will meet Lux at the Woodtick Range.
